MIAMI RESIDENTS
ARE STRUGGLING
TO STAY AFLOAT

WE CAN'T BUILD OURSELVES OUT OF THE PROSPERITY GAP

■ Miami faces a deep crisis of housing unaffordability. Housing is unaffordable for too many Miamians. It's not just that housing is expensive in Miami, wages and incomes are also low. Six in 10 employed adult residents of Greater Miami are housing cost-burdened, meaning they spend more than 30 percent of their incomes on housing—the highest rate of any large metro in the nation. And low-income service workers, who make up more than half of the region's workforce, bear the greatest burden of all.
